President’s Report
•Infrastructural integrity—Constitution, Codes and Handbook Committee, Bobby Wynn

Bobby Wynn reported that progress has been made in updating the constitution and bylaws. A draft is online at the NCLA website for your review. Please send any changes or suggestions to Bobby Wynn by e-mail. All the changes are documented.

President Bracy thanked Bobby and his committee for their work. The past year has been spent comparing the online bylaws with the printed ones. The minutes of the executive board were used to substantiate the changes.

President Bracy would like the board to consider changing the 8 year commitment for leadership in NCLA to a shorter period of time; a move to an annual conference and our relationship with NCASL. These three issues will be a priority for the April meeting of the executive board.

•Strategic planning—Claudia Gollop
No report.

•Organizational outreach—Brenda Stephens
Brenda reported that in December Eddie Davis, President of the NC Association of Educators had contacted her about NCLA’s participation in the Magnolia project. The project would plant magnolias at all public schools. The association would like NCLA to partner with them and to place in the public libraries a document listing all the trees planted. In return, NCLA will be identified as a partner along with Lowes Home Improvement. NC Association of Educators will do all the work. We will receive and archive the information. How to document the project will be decided at a later date. After discussion, the NCLA executive board endorsed the spirit of the project but would like clarification of what we are to do. Brenda will get more clarification about what the NC Association of Educators wants us to do. She will report at the next executive board meeting.

John Via suggested as an outreach that we approach museums and see if we could partner with them.

Brenda suggests that the Morehead Planetarium and the children’s services sections could work together on programs. The Morehead Planetarium would like to partner with the public libraries. This could work into programming for the next conference.

Brenda updated the license plate project. We are ready to move forward but we haven’t decided on a logo or slogan to put on the license plate. Before the license plates will be issued, 300 people will have to sign up. NCLA has to designate the program that the income generated from the sale of the license plates will be used to support. The decision was made to continue pursuing this project. Susanne White will develop a strategy for further developing the program. Ross Holt made the motion, Priscilla Lewis seconded the motion. The motion to further pursue a license plate was passed by voice vote. President Bracy encouraged the executive board to bring ideas for partnership opportunities to the April meeting.

•Centennial Conference—John Via
The final report is not quite ready, but there were 1001 paid registrations from NCLA and 118 paid registrations from SELA. The total expenses of $143,553.53 does not include what we got for free. The total income was $147,000. There are still outstanding bills. The final report deadline is the April meeting of the executive board. The association picked up about 80 new members as a result of the conference.

The Technology & Trends round table asked the executive board to clarify the NCLA’s position on compensating NCLA members who make presentations at the conference. Future practice will be that the conference planning committee will decide on compensation of NCLA members and the policy will be published.

•Pay Equity—President Bracy reported for Beverley Gass.
The Pay Equity committee will meet March 4, 2005.

•Membership Committee—Terry Wehrli
The membership committee recommends raising dues for NCLA membership. At the April meeting the committee would like to make a motion and vote on the changes in dues. NCLA has not increased our dues in ten years. The association should consider raising dues every five years as a matter of policy. The committee presented two proposals. Any proposal will have to go to all members for a vote. The proposed increase in dues will need to be marketed to the membership before the vote. The committee also proposes two additional types of memberships and a change in institutional membership. Definitions of members and categories are also being considered for revision.

Any of these proposed changes will have to be voted on by the membership and will entail changes in the bylaws. A formal motion will be brought to April meeting. Ballots will go out in May. We should present one proposal to the membership with a “yes” or “no” vote.

•President Bracy entreated us to carefully consider moving to an annual conference. The board needs information from vendors, our institutions, and the membership in order to determine the feasibility of an annual conference. The bylaws require a vote of the membership. After conference report in April we will have additional information to use in making a decision.

•Treasurer’s report—Diane Kester
The complete treasurer’s report for 2004 is on the NCLA website at <http://www.nclaonline.org/finance/2005/>. The association had a total income of $78,046.51 and total expenses of $88,108.40, leaving a deficit of $10,061.89. The deficit may change when all the conference expense and income has been posted.

Ross Holt proposed an Option E for the 2005 budget in addition to the A-D options proposed by the Finance Committee. His proposal is based on net new members and how much we are willing to pull from reserves. His plan requires a commitment to an aggressive membership campaign. Motivation was to try to come to terms with limited sources of revenue.

The consensus of the executive board is that we need to base our budget on reality. The current reserves can carry us for only a couple of years. We also need to know why people join or do not join NCLA. Special programs must be self supporting and other streams of revenue must be pursued.

A decision on the budget will be made at the April meeting of the executive board.

• North Carolina Libraries

Al Jones has resigned as editor of North Carolina Libraries. This vacancy needs to be filled soon. Several questions were raised and will be discussed further at the April meeting of the executive Board.

How are we going to publish and in what format and frequency? Should we even continue to publish NC Libraries? Should there be advertising on our webpage?

How many people access the website where North Carolina Libraries resides?

• Policy on future conference registration and releasing of the attendee lists

The vendors want a list of conference registrants. The association currently does not have a policy on releasing the addresses of conference attendees. The executive board agreed on the following policy issues:

1) There will be a check box on both membership form and conference registration form to indicate release or non-release of contact information.
2) Two lists will be sent out free to corporate vendors who register as exhibitors for conference and request a list. These two lists will be of the attendees before and after the conference.
3) There will be a charge for non-registered vendors or for lists in excess of two at discretion of the executive board.

The executive board voted on the above three policy issues. The proposal passed by voice vote.

The executive board voted by raised hands on releasing the list of conference attendees for 2004. Nine (9) members of the executive voted yes and twelve (12) voted no to the release a list of attendees of the 2004 conference. These changes will be in effect during the 2005 conference period. Future conference committees may request different policies to govern future conferences.

• The ALA sponsored event Many Voices, One Nation, One Night@your library will be Monday, April 11, 2005. The winner in the picture book category is Secrets of Mr Snickle’s Class by Laurie M. Hornik and illustrated by Debbie Tilley.
