Libraries and archives play an important role in ensuring that team and individual accomplishments remain available for research, review, and reflection, forever providing a place where human achievements outweigh their failures. — Russell S. Koonts, page 60.