*The Edward Moseley bookplate illustrated on the cover is from a copy of A General Treatise of Husbandry and Gardening by R. Radley, printed in London in 1726 for T. Woodward, and now in the North Carolina Collection at the University of North Carolina Library.*

Moseley, who died in 1749, was active in colonial government from 1705 until his death. He was treasurer of the Colony of North Carolina from 1715 until 1749 and served for many years as Surveyor-General and as a member of the Governor's Council. He was Speaker of the House of Commons during four sessions and served briefly as Chief Justice. He prepared an excellent map of North Carolina in 1733 and served twice on a commission to gather and publish the laws of the colony.

The President Reporting

By Margaret E. Kalp, President, North Carolina Library Association

Dear NCLA Member:

A work session for section officers and committee members of NCLA was held in Charlotte at the Public Library on Saturday, May 2. There was a good representation of both section and committee members present, and judging from the brief progress reports submitted at a General Session in the afternoon, plans are shaping up and in many cases are already being implemented.

The Executive Board held two meetings on May 2, one of which was a brief session at the conclusion of the General Session. Evelyn Pope, Acting Director, School of Library Science, North Carolina College, Durham, who was elected to the office of Second Vice-President of the Association, met with the Executive Board on May 2.

Several items of business claimed the attention of the Executive Board. One of these was the matter of the place and date for the 1965 Biennial Conference of the Association. It was decided that the Conference should be held in Winston-Salem at the Robert E. Lee Hotel, which is now a Jack Tar Hotel, November 4-6, 1965. A number of invitations were received and considered, with Winston-Salem the final choice. Put these dates on your calendar now and plan to attend.

Another matter to come before the Executive Board was the proposal for a Legislative Representative of NCLA at the General Assembly in 1965. Additional information concerning this will be coming direct to each member of the Association.

National Library Week 1964 is now history and very pleasant history at that. With the presentation of the Book-of-the-Month Club Award for small public libraries to the Southport Library on Sunday, April 12, National Library Week in North Carolina was off to a good start. On Thursday, April 16, the 1964 Encyclopaedia Britannica Award was presented to the Durham County School Libraries. Thursday evening a dinner was held in Raleigh at which John V. Hunter, III, chairman of the Governor's Commission on Library Resources, was the speaker. The thanks of the Association go to Neal Austin, Executive Director, to McNeill Smith, State Chairman, to the members of the state committee, and to librarians and non-librarians throughout the state who joined forces to make National Library Week in North Carolina 1964 a success.

In this directory issue of NORTH CAROLINA LIBRARIES the names of section officers and the personnel of Association committees appear. Your attention is called particularly to the Honorary Membership Committee, which is now a standing committee of the Association. This committee through its chairman or its members is the channel by which individual members of the Association may propose people to be considered for honorary membership in NCLA. If you have someone in mind that you believe worthy of this honor, communicate with the chairman or with a committee member. You will also see that a Recruiting Committee has again been established, after a lapse of several years while the Council on Librarianship was functioning in this area. Any ideas from the membership in this important field of activity will be welcomed by the committee.

The Conservation of Newspaper Resources Committee, having accomplished its objectives with the publication of the UNION LIST OF NORTH CAROLINA NEWSPAPERS, 1751-1900, and at its request, has been dissolved, with the thanks and appreciation of the Association for a task well-done.

The Publications Committee has also been dissolved, and in the future sections or committees planning publications should communicate directly with the Executive Board for authorization of the proposed item.

The contents of this directory issue gives evidence of the growth of the Association. The Membership Committee has plans for increasing the number of members still more. Increasing size brings increasingly complex problems of organization and communication within the Association. It may well be that the time is coming for the Association to rethink certain of its practices and policies in the light of its growth. The North Carolina Library Association is strong, but it can always be stronger through additional members. Support of your professional organization is one way of strengthening your profession. Do what you can, each as a "committee of one," to increase the membership and strength of the Association.

Sincerely yours,

Margaret E. Kalp President

New North Carolina Books

By William S. Powell

OCTAVIA J. PERRY. My Head's High From Proudness. Winston-Salem: John F. Blair, Publisher, 1963. 230pp. $4.50.

Burnie Waters (1812-1879) was a hunter and trapper in his native mountains. His early life was spent in Wilkes and Ashe counties, but he moved about. He liked a good story and could make a ballad to please his listeners. He became a legend in his own day. Mrs. Perry has drawn on a few facts and much tradition to write a fictionalized biography in the first person. Her mountain dialect takes getting used to, but it has an authentic ring. Her accounts of the people and the places are real.

CLARENCE POE. My First 80 Years. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1963. 267pp. $4.75.

Dr. Poe, now 83 and well started on his second eighty years, has written a delightful autobiography which conveys both the pleasures and the hardships of his life. Born in Chatham County and long a resident of Wake, he has traveled widely and has contributed much to the advancement of North Carolina. Many of his experiences are those of other Tar Heels of the time and we are indebted to Dr. Poe for so readable a record of them. It is also good to have his own account of many important events in the history of the state of which he was a valuable part.

ALEXANDER SPRUNT, JR. Carolina Low Country Impressions. New York: The Devin-Adair Company, 1964. 192pp. Drawings by John Henry Dick. $10.00.

The lovely pen and ink drawings here not only illustrate the author's text, they also decorate the book. Some are drawings of single animals, plants, or birds, but many are of buildings or scenes. The whole work is designed to convey an "impression" of the Carolina Low Country extending from Cape Fear southward through South Carolina. Most of the subjects are labeled South Carolina, but in a great many cases the same plants, birds, and animals thrive in coastal North Carolina.

M. F. TREACY. Prelude to Yorktown. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1963. 261 pp. $6.00.

A good readable, factual account of the Revolutionary War in North Carolina is hard to come by, but here is one. Based on reliable sources (cited both in chapter notes and bibliography), the author writes from full knowledge of both the scene and the events. Subtitled, "The Southern Campaign of Nathanael Greene, 1780-1781," Mrs. Treacy's book shows how Cornwallis chased Greene until the Battle of Guilford Courthouse. There Cornwallis won an expensive victory and "wrote his battle report amid the groans of the dying." After this it was only a matter of time until the British yielded at Yorktown. Greene's Southern campaign made American victory possible.

ROBERT WILDER. Wind From the Carolinas. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1964. 635 pp. $6.95.

After the American Revolution there were wealthy Loyalist families of Virginia, the Carolinas, and Georgia who left the United States for England's other possessions in the New World. This novel is based on the members and descendants of such a family, the Camerons, from the vague area between Cape Hatteras and Charleston. Their story is told over a little less than 150 years and includes Civil War blockade running through the period of World War I. There are interesting characters, good description, and a tale to appeal to the ladies of the book clubs.

BEN DIXON MACNEILL. Sand Roots. Winston-Salem: John F. Blair, Publisher, 1963. 444pp. $5.95.

Ben Dixon MacNeill was a newspaperman nearly all his life, but his one book published during his lifetime, The Hatterasman, won the Mayflower Award. Sand Roots is a novel which was written before his book of fact. But being a novelist was out of character for Ben Dixon, and he did not offer his manuscript to a publisher. At his death in 1960 it was left to St. Andrews Presbyterian College and, after editorial work by H. Leon Gatlin, III, of the College, was published. The characters, many of them based on real life people, some with true names, are drawn from the people the author knew at Cape Hatteras. The time is during and just after World War II and the story bears evidence of Ben Dixon's knowledge of and love for the people around him.

LAURA MACMILLAN. The North Carolina Portrait Index, 1700-1860. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1963. 272pp. Ports. $15.00.

We can thank Mrs. MacMillan and a committee of the Colonial Dames for this very attractive volume of portraits of North Carolinians and of portraits of "outsiders" owned in North Carolina. There are hundreds of illustrations with information on the subjects, the artists, and the present owners. A separate section gives further information on the artists and there is also an alphabetical list of portraits known to Mrs. MacMillan and her committee but not illustrated in the book. This list is arranged by the subject of the portrait and also gives the name of the artist, the present owner, and location. In addition to being a fascinating "picture book" this is a useful supplement to North Carolina biographical works.

LUCY M. COBB. The Preacher's Three. New York: Exposition Press, 1963. 60pp. $2.75.

"Miss Lucy," as she is known to hundreds of fans throughout the state, shares with us some of the pleasant happenings of her childhood. Buried treasure, a picnic in a grove, a proposal in a mimosa tree are part of the entertaining little scenes from a carefree childhood in the household of a preacher.

H. G. JONES AND JULIUS H. AVANT, EDITORS. Union List of North Carolina Newspapers, 1751-1900. Raleigh: State Department of Archives and History, 1963. $3.00.

Newspapers form one of the very best sources for state and local history, for genealogy, and for research in a variety of fields. This carefully compiled list, arranged by place of publication, gives full titles, the period of publication, and location of known copies of all of the newspapers published in North Carolina from the first in 1751 through 1900. There are many useful references to other names under which many of the papers were published as well as other places in the case of papers which were moved from one town to another. The Committee on the Conservation of Newspaper Resources of the North Carolina Library Association laid the groundwork for this compilation and continued to contribute to its success even after the State Department of Archives and History very generously began supporting it.

GLENN TUCKER. Dawn Like Thunder, The Barbary Wars and the Birth of the U. S. Navy. Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Company, 1963. 487pp. Maps. $6.95.

Flat Rock citizen and Mayflower Cup winner Glenn Tucker has turned his hand with great success from Civil War to Barbary War. Combining scholarly research with an exciting style and subject, he has produced a valuable book on an important period of American history. During the first years of the nineteenth century the young United States of America refused to follow the course of other and older powers in paying tribute to pirates operating in the Mediterranean. Refusing to be a party to any such undercover activity, Americans proclaimed "millions for defense, but not one penny for tributes," and sent a small fleet to enforce their idea of freedom of the seas. From this rebirth of the American Navy, neglected since the Revolution, our modern Navy emerged.

FRANKLIN RAY SHIRLEY. Zebulon Vance, Tarheel Spokesman. Charlotte: McNally and Loftin, 1962. (Published 1963). 161pp. $3.50.

Prof. Shirley is a member of the speech faculty at Wake Forest College and this book represents the fruits of his labor in studying Zebulon Vance as a speaker. Numerous interesting extracts from actual speeches illustrate many points. Although this is not strictly a biography, the subject is treated chronologically. For the most part the author's own style is undistinguished and marked by numerous short and choppy sentences. Many paragraphs consist of a single sentence, sometimes two. The index is one of proper names only, not subjects. We resisted the temptation to investigate the seven entries under "North, The," and the dozen under "South, The." Under Vance's name there are more than a hundred page numbers without any breakdown by subheadings.

JOHN G. BARRETT. The Civil War in North Carolina. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1963. 484pp. Illus., maps. $10.00.

Prof. Barrett has undoubtedly written the final book on the Civil War as a military encounter for North Carolinians of all times. Based on contemporary sources, cited both in footnotes and notes to each chapter, and many described in a "Critical Essay on Selected Sources," this is a book both for the general reader and for reference.

E. T. H. SHAFFER. Carolina Gardens. New York: The Devin-Adair Company, 1963. 326 pp. Illus. $6.95.

This is the third edition of a very popular work which first appeared in 1937. One of the previous editions was published by the University of North Carolina Press. The end papers are a map of the Carolinas marking the gardens discussed in the book. Forty illustrations convey further information about the gardens or about the people who made them. Garden plants are discussed, of course, but the arrangement is by section of the states, making this a useful companion for a garden tour.

MANLY WADE WELLMAN. Settlement on Shocco. Winston-Salem: John F. Blair, Publisher, 1963. 184pp. $2.95.

Written for the 9-13 age group, this story centers around the young sons of a colonist living in the Granville District of North Carolina before the Revolution. An obvious outgrowth of research for the author's recent history of Warren County, this is a clear account for young people of the problems faced by pioneers who settled a new country and had to establish their own local government. It was the winner of the Carolina Charter Tercentenary Award for Prose Fiction.
